Who	Why?
	https://www.athleticsintegrity.org/data-protection

World Athletics uses third party organisations to help provide a professional service to the users of World Athletics Event Management System. These organisations act as data processors and are strictly controlled in how they may/may not use your personal data. World Athletics remains responsible for the protection of your data. Please note that there are Local Organising Committees who are located outside the European Economic Area (EEA) and World Athletics will ensure through contractual provisions they comply with data protection laws. World Athletics may also disclose your personal data where it believes it is compelled to do so by law; in particular for the prevention or detection of crime, the capture or prosecution of offenders; and the assessment or collection of tax or duty.

8. Your rights in respect of personal information:

8.1. World Athletics has a number of obligations in relation to how it handles your personal data. World Athletics is committed to the key principles of transparency, consent (where applicable), security and data minimisation. Alongside relying on World Athletics meeting its obligations, you have a number of rights that you are entitled to exercise.

8.2. The right to object

One key right is the right to stop processing (right to object): This allows you to do three things:

- You object to the disclosure of your information to the third parties listed above, but it will not be possible to process your application/registration for accreditation without that information being disclosed.
- You have the right to object to World Athletics processing information about you where World Athletics processes on the basis of 'legitimate interest' (at time of writing, World Athletics does not process your personal data on the basis of legitimate interests). If you believe this to be the case, you should explain your particular situation and World Athletics will consider this.
- You have the right to ask World Athletics not to process personal data for purposes of sending you direct marketing.

8.3. The other rights are:

- Right of access: In accordance with the provisions of the data protection laws, you have certain rights to request a copy of your own personal data held by World Athletics. You can request to receive a copy of your personal information in a readily understandable format within a reasonable timeframe (one month from the date of the request).
- Right to rectification at any time: You have the right to ask to rectify inaccurate or incomplete personal data which it has about you after you have been registered for accreditation. Where World Athletics positively knows that the personal information that it is processing is inaccurate or incomplete, World Athletics shall, as appropriate, rectify, amend, complete or update the relevant personal information as soon as possible. Where appropriate, if the personal information in question has been disclosed to a third party that is known or believed to continue to process the personal information, the third party shall be informed of the change as soon as possible.
- Right to erasure: you have the right to ask to erase your personal data in some circumstances, including where the information held by World Athletics is no longer necessary for the purposes for which it is processed, you withdraw your consent to its use, or World Athletics can no longer lawfully process the data. However, if you do exercise this right during the accreditation process then it will not be possible to accrediting you for the event.
- Right to restriction of processing: you can restrict our processing of your data in some circumstances. This applies where, for example, if you contest the accuracy of the personal data World Athletics uses or object to World Athletics using the information on the basis of a 'legitimate interest' (see part 1, above (the right to object)). Please note that where you ask World Athletics to restrict processing, World Athletics can still store it subject to the retention period, and use it to establish or defend legal claims, which may run beyond the retention period stated.
- Right to data portability: This permits you to receive from World Athletics a copy of your personal data in an electronic file or format that commonly be used on different devices and machines, and to transfer your personal data from World Athletics to another data controller or have the data transmitted directly between two data controllers.
- Right to object to automatic processing: you have the right not to be subject to decisions based solely on automated processing which significantly affect them (at time of writing, World Athletics does not process your personal data on the Event Management System for the purposes of automatic processing).

9. Cookies and your privacy

9.1. The Event Management System uses 'cookie' information collection technology.

9.2. "Cookies" are small pieces of information that are issued to your computer when you enter a site. Unlike in the case of websites, where cookies are used for multiple purposes, such as identifying user navigation trends, cookies are used in connection with Event Management System for operational reasons only, to keep each user session active and to avoid sessions being 'timed out' after a set period of time. A cookie in no way gives World Athletics access to your computer or any information about you, other than the data that you have chosen to share with World Athletics.

10. Changes to World Athletics Privacy Policy?

10.1. This Privacy Policy may be updated at any time with or without notice, including complying with new practices or regulations. This policy was updated on 22 October 2025.

11. Making Contact:

11.1. World Athletics
